- f. - g. Disclosure may be made by a party during the deposition of the disclosing party or a witness who is serving as a designated expert witness in the lawsuit. Prior to disclosure to any such witness, the witness must agree to be bound by the terms of this Order and the deposition testimony and any exhibits relating to “HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL – ATTORNEYS’ EYES ONLY” information shall be designated as such in accordance with this Order.

9. Except as provided in Paragraphs 7 and 8 above, the parties shall keep all documents subject to this Order secure within their exclusive possession and shall take reasonable efforts to place such documents in a secure area.

10. The failure to designate information as “CONFIDENTIAL” or “HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL – ATTORNEYS’ EYES ONLY” in accordance with this Order or the failure to object to a designation at a given time shall not preclude the subsequent designation (including the filing of a motion at a later date seeking to impose such designation) or challenging the propriety thereof. If a party believes in good faith that a document has been unintentionally or inadvertently produced without an appropriate designation, it will notify the disclosing party in writing of such disclosure within five business days.

11. If a party believes in good faith that a designation of confidentiality is improper, that party may make an objection in writing to the producing party.

- a. Within seven (7) calendar days of the receipt of an objection, the receiving party and the producing party must meet and confer in an effort to resolve any disagreement regarding the producing party’s designation of the material as “CONFIDENTIAL” or “HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL – ATTORNEYS’ EYES ONLY.”

- b. If the parties cannot resolve their disagreement, the receiving party may challenge the designation by filing a motion. The burden of proving the confidentiality of designated information remains with the party asserting such confidentiality.

12. Without written permission from the Disclosing Party or a court order secured after appropriate notice to all interested persons, a Receiving Party may not file in the public record in this Action any “CONFIDENTIAL” or “HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL – ATTORNEYS’ EYES ONLY” information. However, this Order does not, by itself, authorize the filing of any document under seal. Any documents (including briefs), tangible things, or information designated as “CONFIDENTIAL” or “HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL – ATTORNEYS’ EYES ONLY” that are submitted to the Court in support of or in opposition to a motion or introduced at a hearing or during trial may retain their protected confidential status only by compliance with the Court’s Procedures for Electronic Filing Under Seal in Civil Cases.

13. Claw Back of Inadvertent Production. If a party believes in good faith that a document protected by the attorney-client privilege, the attorney work product doctrine or other applicable privilege or protection (“Privileged Material”) has been unintentionally or inadvertently produced by any party to this proceeding it will notify the disclosing party in writing of such disclosure within five business days.

Within five days of such notification, the producing party may then request in writing that the document be returned.

- a. If such a request is made, the receiving party and their counsel shall promptly sequester all copies of the document in their possession, custody, or control.
- b. The receiving party may notify the producing party in writing whether it objects to the designation of the material as privileged or protected within fourteen (14) calendar days of the request.
- c. If the receiving party does not object, the receiving party shall promptly return or destroy the inadvertently disclosed Privileged Material and all copies of it.
- d. Within seven (7) calendar days of the receipt of an objection, the receiving party and the producing party must meet and confer in an effort to resolve any disagreement regarding the producing party's designation of the material as privileged or protected. If the parties cannot resolve their disagreement, the producing party may promptly present the Privileged Materials to the Court under seal for a determination of the producing party's claim of privilege or protection.

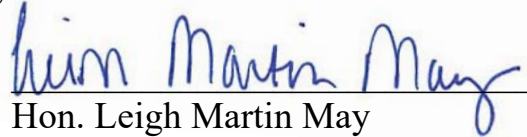

- e. While any application of this kind is pending, the Privileged Material subject to that application must be treated by the receiving party as privileged or protected until the Court rules. If the Court determines that such material is privileged or protected, the receiving party must immediately return or destroy the inadvertently disclosed Privileged Material and all copies of it. The producing party has the burden of showing that the material at issue is privileged or protected.
- f. The unintentional or inadvertent disclosure of a privileged or otherwise protected document shall not constitute a waiver of the privilege or protection with respect to that document or any other documents involving the same or similar subject matter in this proceeding or in any other proceeding.
- g. The return of the purportedly inadvertently produced document shall not be deemed as an acquiescence or admission as to the privilege asserted in the request for return.

14. At the conclusion of this litigation, including any appeals, within 60 days of the conclusion of this litigation (including all appeals), all material treated as subject to this Order and not received in evidence shall be returned to the originating party upon request by the originating party.

- a. If the parties so stipulate, or if the originating party does not make a request for return of the information, the material may be destroyed instead of being returned. The Court or other adjudicative body may return to counsel for the parties or destroy any sealed material at the end of the litigation or other legal proceeding.
- b. Notwithstanding this provision, counsel for the parties are entitled to retain an archival copy of all pleadings, motion papers, trial, deposition, and hearing transcripts, legal memoranda, correspondence, deposition and trial exhibits, expert reports, attorney work product, and consultant and expert work product, even if such materials contain material designated confidential.

15. The inadvertent disclosure of “CONFIDENTIAL” or “HIGHLY CONFIDENTIAL – ATTORNEYS’ EYES ONLY” information shall not be deemed a violation of this Order giving rise to contempt if the producing party (i) requests in writing that the document be returned and notifies the party, or parties, whose confidential information is at issue in the inadvertent disclosure so the parties may confer as to what additional steps (if any) are reasonably necessary to protect the confidential information; and (ii) within 5 days of becoming aware of the inadvertent disclosure notifies in writing all counsel of record of the inadvertent disclosure, as well as steps taken to protect the confidential information.
